#Eroticon

Welcome to Eroticon

We're so excited to welcome you to Arlington House for Eroticon 2018!

Two days of workshops, talks and demos that will give you plenty to think, talk and write about throughout the year.

Whether you're an erotic writer looking to get published, a blogger looking to build your traffic and meet companies to work with, a campaigner ready to share your work, or a budding creative just looking for your niche, we know you'll find something at Eroticon to inspire you.

We're grateful to every single one of our incredible speakers – some of whom are joining us for the first time this year to share their experience and expertise. To the dedicated staff at Arlington House for making sure everything runs smoothly, and being game for some of our unusual requests! To the companies who give us the money that makes Eroticon possible too: we literally couldn't do this without you. And to those who help publish and promote your amazing work: Resonance Press for publishing our Eroticon anthology, and Victoria Blisse who runs the book stall where you can buy it - along with other brilliant books written by Eroticon speakers and attendees.

This year we've made a few additions to the event: bringing the Kinklab back by popular demand so you can spend Saturday afternoon checking out some kinky demos, moving our Saturday night social to a new venue even closer to Arlington so it's easier to drop by for a drink and some entertainment, and providing a few extra bits and pieces that were suggested by last year's attendees too.

Which brings us neatly on to the most important point: attendees! You are the backbone of Eroticon, and you make it what it is. This year we were able to reduce ticket prices thanks to the buzz you created around last year's event: you tweeted, blogged and talked about our sponsors so much that we have more of them with us this year – please do visit their stands and say hello! You also gave us plenty of detailed feedback in the survey, which has helped shape this year's event – keeping the things you loved and adding extra bits that you asked for as well.

But overwhelmingly, the main feedback we got after Eroticon 2017 was how much you all loved meeting each other, and joining in with this community. We provide the room and the organisational bits, but it's you – attendees, speakers and sponsors – who make Eroticon a really memorable event.

So we hope you enjoy Eroticon 2018! Tweet (#Eroticon) and blog about it, learn, have fun, and above all remember that Eroticon isn't just a conference, it's a community. And every single one of you is a valuable part of it.

Cressida Downing, TheBookAnalyst.co.uk, has worked in publishing and bookselling for over 20 years. As a freelance editorial consultant, she works for literary agents, publishers and directly for authors, and will be running a workshop to help you discover if there's a book in your blog.

Dami Olonisakin @Oloni

Dami Olonisakin AKA 'Oloni' is an award-winning blogger from London, founder and editor of simplyoloni.com. She has been featured in multiple mainstream publications and was named one of the BBC's Girls' Champions. She'll be talking about how we discuss sex and relationships in a society that's mono-obsessed.

Daniel Cooper @Danielwcooper

Tech expert Daniel Cooper has worked at Engadget for the last seven years, writing about everything from smartwatches and culture through to Hyperloop and the way that the internet is re-shaping our sexuality. He'll be speaking on the Future of Sex panel.

Dr Meg-John Barker @megjohnbarker

Meg-John Barker is the author of a number of popular books on sex, gender, and relationships, including Queer: A Graphic History, How To Understand Your Gender, Enjoy Sex (How, When, and IF You Want To), Rewriting the Rules, and they also co-host the Meg-John and Justin Podcast. Justin and Meg-John will be hosting a session on how to give responsible sex advice.

Emmeline Peaches @EmmelinePeaches

Emmeline Peaches is a professional self-lover and sex toy aficionado, and strong advocate for sex positivity, minority visibility, and bringing a discerning eye in to the bedroom (and wherever else adult products might appear). Emmeline will be hosting a session on different approaches to sex toy activism.

Girl on the Net @girlonthenet

Sex blogger, author, journalist and one of the organisers of Eroticon, Girl on the Net will be giving an overview of what's happened in the world of sex over the last year, and why the work of Eroticon speakers and attendees is so important in shaping the future.

Hannah Witton @hannahwitton

Hannah Witton is an award-winning vlogger & influencer, with her vlogs attracting more than 24 million unique views on YouTube. She uses her unique blend of positivity, optimism and knowledge to talk about a range of topics including sex, relationships, feminism, body image, gender and sexuality, and she'll be sharing her vlogging tips with everyone at Eroticon.

Jamie Lawson @drlawson

Dr Jamie F. Lawson is an academic sexologist and anthropologist working at Bristol University. An interdisciplinary academic, Jamie has worked in and teaches across various aspects of anthropology; biological, evolutionary and social. He'll be talking about how he became a queer anthropologist.

John Brownstone @southernsirspl

John blogs over at SouthernSirsPlace.com and podcasts weekly for Loving BDSM. When he's not helping to make the Loving BDSM community great, he's in his workshop making wooden paddles. He'll join Kayla Lords for the podcasting panel at Eroticon

Justin Hancock @bishtraining

Justin Hancock is a sex and relationships educator, the chap behind bishuk.com, and one half of the Meg-John and Justin Podcast. Justin and Meg-John will be hosting a session on how to give responsible sex advice.

Kayla Lords @kaylalords

As well as hosting the Loving BDSM podcast, running the Smutlancer and her own blog, Kayla also runs the blog meme Masturbation Monday. She'll be speaking on the podcasting panel and presenting a session on making money from your sex blog.

A passionate bisexual sexplorer when it comes to kinks, fetishes, BDSM, swinging, polyamory, and sex work, Kendra blogs at TheBeautifulKind.com. She will be sharing her experiences in a session on Shocking the System: When your true life tales cross the line

Lori Smith @rarelywearslipstick

Lori Smith is a style conscious body-positive LGBTQ+ feminist and blogger with an inexplicably academic love of lingerie. She blogs at RarelyWearsLipstick.com and will be presenting a session on the history of the bra.

Mactire

Bondage Engineer Mactire aka 'Mac the Vac' can be found most weekends tinkering with kinky constructions in his workshop. And on Saturday afternoon you'll find him showing off his vac bed and vac cube during the Kinklab.

Madeleine Morris @remittancegirl

Madeleine Morris publishes fiction under the pen name Remittance Girl. She has an abiding interest in eroticism; not how we attend to our biological needs, but the way we strive to make meaning of our sexual drives through culture. She will be talking on 'Taboo' as well as giving advice on long-form writing.

Michael Knight @Domsigns

As well as being tech expert for multiple self-hosted sex bloggers (and Eroticon itself!), Michael also blogs at This D/s Life, and has worked in a variety of technical fields over the years. He'll be running a session filled with tips for self-hosted bloggers (and how to get self-hosted if you aren't yet!).

Miss Eve E @MissEveBlogs

Miss Eve E is a queer disabled sex worker, writer, blogger, and bibliophile. She's had an episodic disability for most of her life, and her blog focuses on disability in the contexts of sex, sex work, kink, and relationships. Her workshop tackles the intersection of sex work and disability.

Molly Moore @mollysdailykiss

Sex blogger, Eroticon organiser and founder of projects like Sinful Sunday and Kink of the Week, Molly is passionate about the power of images. She'll be sharing her photography advice with Eroticon attendees, where you can get hands-on with your own cameras.

Saturday Night Social

Entertainment and Saturday Social

What better way to unwind after an exciting day at Eroticon than an evening of entertainment and conversation?

This year the wonderful folks from Eropartner Distribution are sponsoring our Saturday Night Social, to promote their unique new Zumio toy! There'll be an evening of drinks, chat, and entertainment to enjoy while you mingle and have fun with other Eroticon attendees.

Eropartner will have a table set up with Zumio products for you to try out and even win. Meanwhile silhouette artist Alison Russell will be cutting charming silhouette portraits of attendees – showing off the Victorian art of creating unique miniature likenesses, for anyone who would like to take away a miniature of their own. Magician Daniel Barker will be with us too, entertaining everyone with tricks throughout the night.

Dress code: please wear whatever you feel comfortable in. We'll be in a pub, so jeans and t-shirts are absolutely fine, as is dressing up fancy if you fancy it.

The social starts at 7:30PM at The Edinboro Castle 57 Mornington Terrace, London NW1 7RU -The pub serves a selection of food as well as drinks so you can get dinner there if you like. The pub closes at 11:00PM

Be sure to bring your Eroticon badge (you don't have to wear it, you just need to flash it to be admitted to our reserved area.
